Policy

Indivior believes that human rights are an absolute and universal standard. The Group is opposed to all forms of human slavery and trafficking and will not do business with any organisation that it knows to be involved in these activities.

The Group's recently enhanced Code of Conduct, Doing The Right Things Right, includes a specific commitment to adhere to the provisions of the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the Convention on the Rights of the Child, the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises and the UK Modern Slavery Act 2015. Article four of the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights specifically prohibits slavery and the slave trade in all their forms and this is specifically highlighted within the Code. The Code of Conduct applies to the Group's workforce globally. It is the Group's policy that all employees and contractors receive induction training about these requirements when commencing work.

Indivior also has a confidential reporting and guidance tool, the Indivior EthicsLine, through which employees and contractors may report concerns or seek guidance on applicable Indivior policies. The EthicsLine may be used to report wrongdoing, including possible human rights violations. All reports are fully investigated and appropriate remedial action is taken.

Supply chain

Indivior's supply chain consists of businesses involved in the manufacture, assembly and distribution of the Group's products. It also includes companies that supply Indivior with a variety of business, transport and administrative services. The Code of Conduct states that the Group is committed to proactively encouraging its suppliers and contractors to demonstrate responsible behavior and high standards of business conduct. It does this by the conduct of regular dialogue and interaction with its suppliers and contractors.

Indivior recognizes its responsibility to ensure that its policies and systems robustly exclude slavery and forced labour from the business on an ongoing basis. The Group is planning to further develop its procedures to ensure that these issues will be continuously addressed in line with the requirements of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and good business practice.

Risk and response

The Group considers that the risk that slavery and human trafficking is taking place within its business or supply chain is low and has uncovered no evidence to indicate otherwise. The Group will act immediately to redress any matter that indicates that this sort of activity is taking place.
